Preface

This Chronology of Events covers the period from January 27, 1981, to November 18, 1987. It begins with an excerpt from President Reagan's remarks at a White House ceremony celebrating the release of Americans who had been held hostage by Iran for more than a year. It ends with the release of the Report of the Congressional Committees Investigating the Iran-Contra Affair.

The Report of the investigation is a joint publication of the House Select Committee to Investigate Covert Arms Transactions with Iran and the Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition. This Chronology, however, was prepared by the staff at the direction of the House Select Committee as an Appendix to the joint Report. Minority Members of the Select Committee filed a brief critique of the Chronology. The Senate Select Committee also prepared a chronology that is largely based on the joint public hearings held by the two Select Committees.

The House Select Committee took several steps to make this document something of a roadmap to guide students through Iran-Contra and to encourage further study of this historic time. Each entry is dated in a way that readers can easily determine the timeframe. When the date could not be pinpointed precisely, that fact is indicated. Each item is labeled to indicate at a glance to which facet of Iran-Contra the entry relates. The entries include Presidential statements and Congressional actions.

This format helps to demonstrate the interaction and the meshing of Iran-Contra events: the interplay and maneuvering of private agents and Federal Government officials who were secretly selling arms to terrorist Iran to free American hostages—contrary to U.S. public policy—and secretly diverting money from the sale to buy weapons for the Contras—also contrary to public policy and perhaps in violation of the law. It weaves together what was being said and done publicly and being said and done privately by this group of Government officials and private agents.

This Chronology contains a brief description of each event and sources to which one can refer for further study. Most sources are a matter of public record. The references, while comprehensive, are not all-inclusive, because of limitations on time and resources.

Some sources cited in this volume were not part of the Select Committees' public record or otherwise available publicly at the time the Select Committees released their joint Report. These sources are included as an appendix to this Chronology. The Chronology itself and all sources cited, including depositions, have been reviewed by the White House Declassification Committee and declassified for publication.

Other documents that underlie the factual statements made in this Chronology can be found in the Appendix publications of the Select Committees. These publications, listed elsewhere in this volume, contain the testimony taken at public hearings, sworn depositions, and source documents such as letters, memorandums, interoffice messages, transcripts of telephone calls, and so on. Where depositions are cited as sources, the page numbers cited were taken from the individual depositions. These numbers are in the upper right-hand corner of the pages of the Appendix B volumes.

When an event involved several persons, an effort was made to track down the accounts of that event of as many participants as possible through testimony, depositions, and documents. In a few cases, a single source is relied upon to establish the facts of an event. Such events are included in the Chronology because they may add small but important details to the complex mosaic that makes up the Iran-Contra Affair.

The Minority Critique of The Majority's Chronology

Introduction

While the Minority has labored hard to assist the Majority in preparing a better chronology, and while the Minority believes that the succeeding chronology is a better product (more accurate, objective, complete and balanced) because of our input, we cannot, for the reasons set forth below, endorse this chronology and we therefore admonish all who may read it, and consider relying on it, to refer first to the Report (Minority and Majority) to insure you have a complete and accurate picture of the events.

Background

Unlike the drafting process followed in the preparation of the Majority Report, the chronology was not presented to the Minority for review and input prior to its being sent to the White House on December 23, 1987, for declassification. Indeed, it wasn't until the third week of January 1988, that the Minority learned from the White House Counsel's Office that a draft had been completed and sent to the White House for declassification. In the four weeks that followed, the Minority staff worked with the Majority to produce a chronology both sides could endorse. That effort was greatly handicapped by the fact that both staffs, at that point, had lost the overwhelming majority of their numbers; many of whom alone had a highly specialized knowledge of critical areas of the investigation. While many of the Minority's suggested changes and adoptions were accepted, the final product, though better, still cannot be endorsed.

Problems with the Chronology

The Minority's objection to the existing chronology cannot be stated in one word ("inaccurate") or even one sentence; there are a combination of problems that enumber it.

First, the concept of writing a comprehensive chronology after the overwhelming majority of the staff has left the Committee is a flawed one in light of the enormity of the project. A huge staff, Majority and Minority, labored unceasingly for months to produce a Report (Majority and Minority) that is comprehensive, accurate, and relevant. That Report is the product of the distillation and synthesis of hundreds of depositions, thousands of pages of testimony, and hundreds of thousands of documents. It spans 700 printed pages and was pored over in multiple drafts that were reviewed by both sides. This chronology, by comparison, was essentially produced over a three-week period between November 18 and December 23, 1987, after most of the staff had left the Committee. With their departure went their accumulated expertise in the various component parts of the investigation. Therefore, for a chronology to be produced that is not an index of that combined effort by a group of experts, is to expect an almost inhuman and risk-fraught venture from a handful of people. The issue, therefore, with regard to the reliability of the chronology is not whether the individual items are accurate, rather: whether the authors knew the subject matter surrounding each of the highly complicated series of events well enough to insure that they included all of the relevant and important facts regarding each of those series of events. The Minority submits that it is impossible to expect that, and that this chronology is full of examples, some of which it no doubt failed to catch, of descriptions of events that are dangerously incomplete and therefore are likely to leave its readers with misimpressions.

One example the Minority noted and which the Majority amended related to Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams. The Majority's draft failed in its two prior drafts to include any reference to the circumstances under which Abrams learned from the CIA that its field officer, Tomas Castillo, was secretly communicating with the private benefactors and how he (Abrams) brought that to the attention of Secretary Shultz immediately upon learning it. If those facts had been left from the chronology, there would have been a grave misimpression about Abrams' role in those events.

While the Minority in its review did point this out, as well as other similar examples, it is confident that in other areas which are equally, if not more complicated, its limited staff lacked the expertise and time to insure that all of the essential facts had been included in all of the various areas. Therefore, since the chronology has been written independent of the Report, it is highly questionable, considering the extremely limited resources that went into it, that it is as comprehensive and balanced as the Report.

A second problem with the chronology is that despite suggestions by the Minority to the contrary, the Majority has persisted in selectively recounting certain events in such a way as to leave a misimpression of what happened with the reader who does not also refer to the Report. An excellent example of this is the chronology's treatment of the mining of the harbors in Nicaragua. The sum total of the treatment of the events surrounding the CIA's involvement with the mining of the harbors in Nicaragua is contained in two entries dated 4/1/84 and 4/2/84. The critical facts concerning those events were much more detailed and clearly included a series of briefings by the CIA to Congress and, more importantly perhaps, a Congressional change of direction in reaction to adverse public opinion. While those events are described at length in the Report at pages 489 and 490, neither of those entries was amended to include even a reference to the CIA briefings of Congress and the Congress' about-face. This chronology therefore, in some instances, gives a distorted and incomplete picture of certain facts which, even though accurate, is misleading.

A final problem with the chronology worth noting is the host of entries (particularly references to phone calls and meetings) which are stated cryptically and without explanation. This type of shorthand reference, particularly during the November 1986 investigation period, not only encourages speculation and innuendo, but fails to clarify for the readership events which are accounted for by the testimony of numerous witnesses.

Conclusion

Because of the reasons stated above, and in light of the circumstances surrounding the preparation of this chronology (especially in comparison to that done for the Report), the Minority respectfully refrains from endorsing this product and strongly encourages all who read it (and may rely upon it) to refer not only to the sources cited, but to the Report (Majority and Minority) in order to get a more complete and contextual reference to the events uncovered during this Committee's investigation.

In the PROF, North notes that the $6 million available “reduces the need to go to third countries for help.” North says he did not discuss with Poindexter the possibility of bringing this to the attention of the President or the Secretary of State at the NSPG meeting. Poindexter says that he did not tell the President so as to preserve President Reagan’s deniability. In the same PROF, North writes: “Unless we do this (turn the operation over to the CIA), we will run increasing risks of trying to manage this problem from here with the attendant financial and political liabilities. . . . While I care not a wit about what they say about me, it could well become a political embarrassment for the President and you.” North also writes that although he does not know what Don Regan knows of the private operation, “the President obviously knows why he has been meeting with several select people to thank them for their support of Democracy in CentAm.” A PROF by Poindexter on 5/19/86 tells North, “Don Regan knows very little of your operation and that is just as well.”

The Secretary of State

HONORABLE CASPAR W. WEINBERGER
The Secretary of Defense

HONORABLE WILLIAM J. CASEY
Director of Central Intelligence

GENERAL JOHN W. VESSEY, JR.
Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff

SUBJECT: Central America (U)

Based on the NSC meeting of July 8, 1983, it is my judgment that:

- The security situation in Central America is deteriorating.
- This is a consequence of, among other things, inadequate resources.
- There is a persistent lack of public understanding of our interests, objectives, the threat, and our policies for dealing with Central American problems. (TS/S)

Accordingly, in order to deal with these issues I have reached the following tentative conclusions:

- We should move immediately, in accordance with the plan at Tab A, to convene a Presidential Commission to develop requisite bipartisan support for our policies and the provision of adequate resources.
- U.S. military presence, [redacted] and the capability to respond to contingencies in the region should be significantly enhanced as soon as possible in accord with the plan at Tab B.
- A revitalized public affairs/legislative action plan, as depicted at Tab C, should be implemented immediately. (TS/S)

CENTRAL AMERICA
THE PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION

A Presidential Commission should be constituted as soon as possible to develop a long-range program of security, economic and humanitarian assistance for Central America. Accordingly:

- The President and the Secretary of State should meet with Senators Jackson and Mathias and Congressmen Kemp and Barnes promptly to discuss a mandate for a bipartisan Presidential Commission on Central America.
- The Commission's mandate is to be carefully and precisely defined. The duties of the Commission will be to undertake a study of the situation in Central America (drawing again upon all official sources) so that the Commission members will understand the strategic importance of the area and the threats to US security and national interests.
- The Commission will make recommendations to the President on initiatives that could be undertaken to improve the long-term security of the region, the social and economic betterment of the people of Central America, and how best to defeat the Soviet and Cuban effort to destabilize the area.
- It should be fully understood by everyone that the President, in creating such an organization, is in no way abdicating his responsibilities in foreign policy or in defending the interests of the United States. In particular:
 - The Secretary of State should make clear that the Administration's pending reprogramming and supplemental requests must be met promptly. He should also forward promptly a proposal for increases as appropriate in FY-84 resources devoted to the area.
 - It will be made clear in launching the Commission that we expect support for pending requests and for the removal of current restrictions on our actions.
- The Commission's treatment of covert action should be limited to one or two members with experience in such matters. (S)

The Secretary of Defense, in concert with the Secretary of State and the Director of Central Intelligence, will develop a program of appropriate military actions, exercises, and contingency measures designed to curtail and eventually halt Cuban/Soviet Bloc assistance and presence in Nicaragua. These U.S. measures should be aimed at creating a credible, escalatory deterrent in accord with the following plan: (TS/S)

The Secretary of Defense, in cooperation with the Secretary of State and the Director of Central Intelligence, will provide a detailed implementation strategy for the eight point action plan noted above. This strategy should be based upon the rationale that the long range benefits of the Presidential Commission (Tab A) cannot be realized unless adequate measures are taken in the near and mid-term. In accordance with Tab C, the Department of Defense should identify the public affairs guidance and Congressional action/consultation required to accomplish each of the action points identified above. CENTRAL AMERICA
PUBLIC AFFAIRS/LEGISLATIVE ACTION PLAN

The Department of State, in coordination with other appropriate departments and agencies, will immediately develop a public affairs/legislative action plan designed to improve support for our Central American policy. Particular emphasis will be placed on the process of implementing near and mid-term actions (Tab B) and support for the Presidential Commission (Tab A). (C)

- The objective of this plan will be to educate and heighten the perceptions of the American people regarding the situation in Central American and the dangers posed by the Marxist/Leninist government of Nicaragua in their export of revolution to democratically oriented states. This campaign should also stress the danger of Soviet, Soviet Bloc, and Cuban interference in the region; the threat it poses for states in the area and its effect on U.S. security and national interests. Emphasis must be placed on the international dimension of the threat since the impact on U.S. interests will obviously affect the interests of friends and allies as well. (S)
- The plan should provide for periodic visits (at least twice monthly) by senior officers to each of the twelve major media centers. Meetings should be planned with editorial boards, public fora, appearances on talk shows, etc., in order to reach the largest number of American citizens. (C)
- A detailed legislative action plan should be prepared to carry our message to Capitol Hill, to appropriate funds already requested and those to be requested under this plan. Responsibility for the outcome of events should be clearly delineated. (C)
- We should seek to relieve current legislative constraints regarding "certification" and the Boland Amendment. Full support will be sought to continue funding for Nicaraguan resistance activities. (TS/S)
- To protect options for the Commission, we must prevent the situation from deteriorating further. This rationale should be used in all public affairs/legislative action planning. (S)

This coordinated plan should be delivered by OAA, July 13, 1983. (U)

MEMORANDUM FOR: General Counsel
FROM: [REDACTED]
Office of General Counsel
SUBJECT: H.R. 5399 -- Section 107, Prohibition on Covert Assistance for Military Operations in Nicaragua

1. The Director has asked for a legal interpretation of the restriction contained in Section 107 of H.R. 5399, which was recently passed by the House of Representatives. More specifically, OGC has been asked to analyze the effect of this provision on expenditures for staff salaries.

[REDACTED] In my view, while we plainly can pay all of these fixed costs on the basis of other appropriations, we just as clearly cannot utilize these resources in any activities which would have the effect of supporting paramilitary operations in Nicaragua by anyone.

2. In addition, we have been asked to comment upon the use of third countries to continue the Nicaragua project. I believe the Agency can request third countries to carry on the program at their own expense so long as it is made clear that no U.S. funds would be used either now or in the future to repay such a commitment. The extent to which Agency personnel can be involved in soliciting third country support would have to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

3. Although the language of Section 107 differs only slightly from that of Section 108 of the Intelligence Authorization Act for FY 84 (hereinafter Section 108), the legal effect of those differences is substantial. Section 107 reads as follows:

PROHIBITION ON COVERT ASSISTANCE FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS IN NICARAGUA

Sec. 107. During fiscal year 1985, no funds available to the Central Intelligence Agency, the Department of Defense, or any other agency or entity of the United States involved in intelligence activities may be obligated or expended for the purpose of which would have the effect of supporting directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua by any nation, group, organization, movement, or individual.^{1/}

On its face and by its very title, the House version operates as a total prohibition on the use of any funds by U.S. intelligence elements during FY 85 for direct or indirect support of military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua by anyone. This language effectively blocks all direct U.S. activities in Nicaragua and precludes U.S. financial support for the Contras during FY 85 by any means. In dissecting Section 107, we are faced with the following restrictions:

A) RESTRICTION ON TIME -- This prohibition would operate throughout FY85 and any subsequent supplemental appropriations would likewise be subject to its restrictions. Should this language become the final version of next year's Intelligence Authorization Act, as of 30 September 1984, an amendment of the Section would be required in order to legalize spending for the Nicaragua program.

B) RESTRICTION ON FUNDS -- The wording contained in Section 107 that "no funds available" may be obligated or expended for the restricted purpose translates into a total prohibition on all activities supporting paramilitary operations in Nicaragua that require funding by the U.S. The funds available are not limited by year of appropriation. Thus, reprogramming of prior year funds and releases from the Reserve for Contingencies would be prohibited. Moreover, the prohibition is not limited by its language to appropriated funds. The broadness of the wording of this section appears to prohibit the use of funds

LIMITATION ON COVERT ASSISTANCE FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS IN NICARAGUA

Sec. 108. During fiscal year 1984, not more than $24,000,000 of the funds available to the Central Intelligence Agency, the Department of Defense, or any other agency or entity of the United States involved in intelligence activities may be obligated or expended for the purpose or which would have the effect of supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua by any nation, group, organization, movement, or individual.

made "available" to the Agency, by other nations, groups or individuals. Therefore, the Agency could not conduct ~~the~~ covert action while another nation, group or ~~private individual~~ foots the bill.

C) RESTRICTIONS ON OBLIGATIONS OR EXPENDITURES
-- This restriction on both obligations and expenditures of funds available in FY85 not only precludes Agency spending now for the restricted purpose, but forbids the making of commitments to spend available funds at some future time. This same language is contained in FY84's spending cap and the question was raised in that situation whether funds obligated in FY83, but expended in FY84, would be subject to the $24 million limitation. It is my understanding that the question was informally resolved because the Committees reportedly did not intend the limitation to effect funds already obligated. In any event, funds that have been obligated arguably are not "available" to the Agency in a technical sense. To avoid future questions by the Committees, however, it might be appropriate to urge Congress to modify any final restrictive language in a manner that clarifies this point. Perhaps adding to the phrase "no funds available" the words "for obligation" would narrow the restriction.^{2/}

^{2/} There has been at least one instance where the language of a proposed amendment required the deobligation of funds and their return to the Treasury. Senator Proxmire offered the following amendment to the Department of State Authorization Act for FY84-85, S. 1342:

PROHIBITION ON CERTAIN ASSISTANCE TO THE KHMER ROUGE IN KAMPUCHEA

Sec. 701. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act or any other Act may be obligated or expended for the purpose, or with the effect, of promoting, sustaining or augmenting, directly or indirectly, the capacity of the Khmer Rouge or any of its members to conduct military or paramilitary operations in Kampuchea or elsewhere in Indochina.

(1) All funds appropriated before the date of enactment of this section which were obligated but not expended for activities having the purpose or effect described in subsection (a) shall be deobligated.

(2) All funds deobligated pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts.

Executive Registry 5988

D) RESTRICTION ON WHO MAY SPEND -- The provision expressly mentions the CIA, DoD and "any other agency or entity of the U.S. involved in intelligence activities." ~~These~~ ~~the~~ funds are subject to the restriction. This language appears to prohibit use of funds made available to the Department of State, to the extent that expenditure of those funds would have the effect of supporting paramilitary operations. Section 107 does not, however, prohibit the Department from obligating or expending funds for diplomatic or other purposes in Nicaragua. Although the restriction does not apply to entities not involved in intelligence, such as the Department of Agriculture, for example, any appropriated funds available to those agencies could not legally be expended for unauthorized purposes under traditional appropriations law. Obviously such other agencies are not authorized by law to conduct paramilitary operations.

E) RESTRICTION ON PURPOSE OR EFFECT -- The language of Section 107 requires the Agency not only to refrain from committing or spending funds for the express purpose of supporting paramilitary activities in Nicaragua, but also demands that the CIA anticipate the "effect" of its expenditures. Thus, funds given to the Contras that were being expended, for example, to provide humanitarian support, interdict the flow of arms in the region or assist with public relations efforts, would be prohibited only if such assistance were determined to have the "effect" of supporting paramilitary activities in Nicaragua. While the language of Section 107 itself can be construed to permit humanitarian aid by U.S. intelligence elements, the legislative history indicates that the bill's proponents would oppose any assistance to the Contras.

F) RESTRICTION ON DIRECT OR INDIRECT SUPPORT FOR MILITARY OR PARAMILITARY OPERATIONS -- The restriction on direct or indirect support for military/paramilitary operations prohibits the funding of any Agency activities which have a reasonable nexus with the Nicaraguan covert action program. While the interpretation of "direct" support may cause us few problems, how to define what will have the effect of indirectly supporting such activities in Nicaragua cannot be determined with certainty. Rather than drawing a thin line, this language paints a gray zone subject to interpretation. The provision of medical supplies to the Contras, for example, arguably has the "effect" of "indirectly" supporting their paramilitary activities.

This point takes on particular significance when we compare this year's $24 million cap with the "no ~~federal~~ prohibition of Section 107. As we were ~~approaching~~ the cap, CIA informed the Committee that the Agency had not exceeded the statutory $24 million limitation. We responded to congressional inquiries regarding certain expenditures by treating the matter as an accounting issue and distinguishing direct or indirect support from direct and indirect costs. We noted that the legislative history gave no indication that all "indirect costs" conceivably related to the program must be charged against the cap and that we had charged costs in accordance with long-standing Agency accounting procedures. The SSCI found no problems with this explanation, but the majority members of HPSCI stated their belief that all direct and indirect costs of the program should have been charged against the cap.^{3/}

The essential difference between the cap and the prohibition is that, in the former, the Agency had authorization for an ongoing program and could expend funds and account for them in some way until $24 million was reached; in Section 107 no expenditures can be charged against the Nicaraguan covert action program.

The only useful discussion of the meaning of the terminology "directly or indirectly" is found in the House Report on H.R. 2760, which attempted to impose an absolute ban on support for military/paramilitary operations in Nicaragua. The language of that bill is similar to the wording of Section 107 and may be helpful in determining what the House had in mind.^{4/} The section contains an analysis of the relevant provisions of "indirect support" in the context of support of entities outside Nicaragua which operate within Nicaragua. The specific example given to show the type of indirect support that would be prohibited was training conducted exclusively outside Nicaragua if given in preparation for military or paramilitary activities inside Nicaragua.

^{3/} Only one reference was made during the floor debate to the accounting practices utilized by the intelligence community in accounting for FY84 funds. Congressman Miller remarked:

I would also suggest that the funding is illegal, because never have I seen such magnificent bookkeeping that can allow this $21 million to go the number of months that it has. They are always going to run out just before we take up the bill, but when the bill does not come out the way the intelligence community likes, then they are able to fund it for several months because somehow the economies are worked out. This is the most efficiently run war in history if they can make $21 million go this far. But we know that is not what is going on. There is diversion of other military sources and there is the raising of money in the private sector to support these mercenaries.

The report expressly noted that the section would not prohibit the collection, production or analysis of intelligence. Nor would it prohibit the provision of that intelligence to foreign governments, as long as the provision of such intelligence did not support military/paramilitary operations in Nicaragua by foreign nations or other entities.

G) RESTRICTION ON PLACE -- Section 107 prohibits the financial support of military or paramilitary activities in Nicaragua. Funding for any activity which would take place outside Nicaragua but would have the effect of supporting paramilitary operations inside Nicaragua would thus be forbidden.

H) RESTRICTION ON WHO DOES THE OPERATIONS -- The restriction against funding applies to paramilitary operations "by any nation, group, organization, movement, or individual." This wording effectively prohibits the Agency's funding of such activities via intermediaries.

Legislative History

4. The legislative history is helpful only for discerning the spirit behind Section 107. There is no analysis of the wording in 20 pages of floor debate. 130 CONG. REC. HB264-84

(Daily ed. Aug. 2, 1984). Both those in favor of and those against the restriction agreed, however, that Section 107 bans the provision of any funds for military or paramilitary activities in Nicaragua and that the intent is to terminate U.S. assistance to the Contras. 0421

5. Congressman Boland stated in his opening remarks that the single issue is "disagreement on the effectiveness and appropriateness of a particular covert action to overthrow the government of another nation." Id. at 8266. He later added that "our policy does not strengthen democracy in Nicaragua" and that "(t)his secret war should end -- today." Id. at 8276. Congressman Hyde noted that Section 107 "forbids any assistance to the freedom fighters in Nicaragua No food, no medicine, no ammunition, not even moral support." Id. at 8269. The spirit of Section 107 is abundantly clear -- the House expects Section 107 to end U.S. assistance to the Contras.

6. While the drafters more than likely attempted to imitate the Clark Amendment's prohibition on assistance of any kind for paramilitary operations in Angola,^{5/} it can be argued that the Section 107 restriction is somewhat different. Unlike the Clark Amendment, this section limits all funds rather than all assistance and it could be thought, therefore, to permit certain activities precluded under the Clark Amendment. Section 107 can be read to allow assistance that either does not require funding by intelligence elements or that does not directly or indirectly support paramilitary operations.

Agency ~~_____~~ salaries ~~_____~~ extent that those expenditures would have the effect of supporting paramilitary operations in Nicaragua. The question of allocation of these costs, which was an important point under the spending cap, is not an issue under the wording of Section 107. Since no funds can be obligated or expended in FY85, no current action program by the U.S. which supports paramilitary operations in Nicaragua is possible.

Provision of Aid by Third Countries

8. With regard to the provision of aid by third countries, Section 107 prohibits funding, not discussion. This issue also presents a gray zone subject to interpretation. Certainly asking other countries to provide aid on their own is not prohibited so long as there is no quid pro quo. If, however, the third country expected repayment from the U.S., such assistance would be forbidden. If such a country provided aid with the understanding that the U.S. would provide an equal amount for one of their programs, the Agency would be in violation of both the letter and the spirit of Section 107 and would be open to charges of deliberate circumvention of the law.

9. The more difficult question is the extent to which Agency personnel can be used to solicit third country assistance. In my view, when FY85 begins, Section 107 prohibits the payment of the salaries and expenses of personnel for solicitation of third country assistance because such efforts would have the effect of indirectly supporting paramilitary operations in Nicaragua. Once again, on the spectrum of possible Agency activities to solicit third country assistance, some efforts would clearly be prohibited and others are arguably authorized. Payment of the salary and expenses of an employee whose full-time was dedicated to soliciting such assistance would contravene the restriction. On the other hand, requests for assistance by ~~_____~~ in the course of his normal duties presents a closer case.^{6/}

10. Another hypothetical situation poses troubling legal questions: the use of Agency personnel as couriers for funds provided by third countries to the Contras. While I believe such activity would be prohibited by Section 107 if the courier's sole function was to pass those funds, if that item was a de minimis part of the courier's functions, it could be argued that no funds were expended for the restricted purpose.

^{6/} If the President tasks the representative of a nonintelligence agency to solicit such assistance in diplomatic or other channels, the letter of Section 107 would not appear to be violated, but such action might be viewed by supporters of the restriction as a violation of the spirit of that prohibition.

11. In any event, under the requirement to keep Congress fully and currently informed concerning intelligence activities, the Agency is required to advise the Committee of any plans to solicit entry assistance for the Contras.

Conclusion

12. The congressional intent behind Section 107 is to stop covering U.S. assistance to the Contras. The House crafted the language of that section tightly in order to restrict in every way possible any obligations or expenditures by U.S. intelligence elements which would result in continued assistance to military or paramilitary activities in Nicaragua. Should that language remain in the final authorization act, in my view, any close cases would be viewed by the proponents of Section 107 as efforts to circumvent the statutory prohibition.

MEMORANDUM FOR: The Honorable Robert C. McFarlane
Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs

SUBJECT: Draft NSDD re U.S. Policy Toward Iran

1. I strongly endorse the thrust of the draft NSDD on U.S. Policy Toward Iran, particularly its emphasis on the need to take concrete and timely steps to enhance U.S. leverage in order to ensure that the USSR is not the primary beneficiary of change and turmoil in this critical country. While I am broadly in agreement with its assessment of the current political situation, the NSDD needs to reflect more fully on the complex of Soviet motives and recent actions towards Iran and their implications for U.S. policy initiatives. Moreover, I believe that the NSDD should be more precise about the extent and nature of domestic disaffection with the regime and about the potential for encouraging a more pro-Western stance within the regular armed forces and the Revolutionary Guard. Finally, I offer some specific suggestions on the draft itself that refine and add to the proposed U.S. policy actions.

2. The draft NSDD portrays the current Iranian regime as moving to improve its relations with the Soviet Union because of Iran's mounting difficulties. While true, it ignores the following recent developments indicating that Moscow has rebuffed the Iranians:

-- The Soviets recently withdrew between 1,000 and 1,500 Soviet economic advisers from Iran.

- Soviet-Iranian trade has declined significantly over the past year.
- The Soviets have resumed a hard-line stance in their propaganda on Iran.

There are several possible explanations for these Soviet actions. Moscow may be questioning Tehran's sincerity in changing its anti-Soviet posture during its recent approaches to Moscow. The Soviets also may believe that the current Iranian regime has nowhere else to turn and that they may be able to wring real concessions from Iran by tightening the pressure. Moscow also may be trying to force Iran to end the war with Iraq.

3. This downturn in Soviet-Iranian relations strengthens the case made in the NSDD for our Allies filling the vacuum left by the withdrawal of Soviet economic advisers and the downturn in Soviet-Iranian trade. [REDACTED] are well positioned to help on the projects abandoned by the Soviets. Quick action could block a future return of the Soviets to these projects and remove a major source of Soviet influence in Iran.

4. On the question of the declining popularity of the regime, I would underline that the recent decline has largely occurred among that portion of the populace that is largely uncommitted and passive. The regime still retains steadfast adherents among the lower and peasant classes that are very active politically. At the same time, the NSDD could better reflect that we have seen evidence of a growing cleavage between those loyal to the regime and those opposed to it. U.S. actions-- [REDACTED] can exploit this cleavage and activate the uncommitted.

5. In formulating U.S. policy, we need to keep in mind that Iranian policy actions do not spring from a single source. The NSDD therefore might usefully highlight on page 3 that we might well witness a move toward moderation and accommodation on the part of the pragmatists while at the same time the radicals will be seeking to undermine those policies and seek the initiative through engaging in terrorist acts designed to radicalize the atmosphere and upstage the pragmatists.

- The U.S also should find opportunities for public statements that stress that we have no antipathy towards Islam and furthermore that we view Islam as a positive moral force in the region in an age when materialism and atheism are on the rise. We should also make clear our lack of hostility to an Islamic Republic in Iran as long as international norms of terrorism and subversion are not violated.

- I agree strongly with points 3 and 5 on page 6 of the draft NSDD that we should seek to open lines of communications to the existing Iranian leadership and should avoid actions that could alienate Iranians potentially receptive to improved relations with the U.S.. The President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Here is the letter about leaks I promised you in our telephone conversation early in the week.

[REDACTED]

This is only one of many unauthorized disclosures arising from a lack of discipline in the Executive as well as the Congressional oversight committees. This is a cancer which mortally threatens your Presidential authority to conduct foreign policy, our national security process, and our intelligence capabilities. It increasingly erodes the morale and the security ethic of all those who respect and comply with our security programs.

As you know, I have long been deeply concerned about this because I cannot adequately meet my statutory responsibility to protect intelligence sources and methods unless those in government who receive and handle our intelligence are required to live up to their responsibilities.

On the Friday [REDACTED] I told the Senate Intelligence Committee, in a hearing on counterintelligence, that media leaks which broadcast sensitive information to the world do more damage than hostile services to our reputation for reliability and to our relationships with other nations. I put it this way:

"....Virtually every category of source we have has been damaged by unauthorized disclosures over the last year or so. Talking to the press about intelligence information received in the deepest confidence has jeopardized the lives of agents. Public discussion of what we knew and when we knew it and the [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]. As we stand today, we have been spending large sums to enhance intelligence capabilities and permitting loose talk to seriously damage their value...."

On 14 November 1984, I wrote to you about the urgent need to establish discipline in the handling of classified information. In that memorandum, I cited eleven cases of media revelations of classified information which had damaged our ability to conduct an effective foreign intelligence program. At a subsequent NSPG meeting you directed that the SIG(1), the NSC subcommittee on intelligence which I chair, present recommendations for dealing with this plague. On 29 November 1984, I sent to Bud McFarlane a comprehensive set of proposals, developed by the SIG(1), a subcommittee chaired by Judge Webster, to bring the unauthorized disclosure problem under control. Here are 18 separate action items to be considered.

Much too much of [redacted] has been lost in dealing with this problem. Today, I must tell you that [redacted]

While we have te- [redacted] orized with this problem, the governments of friendly foreign nations have told us that our inability to keep secrets has created great anxiety about cooperating with us. [redacted]

I have been taking steps to limit information provided the oversight committees:

- restricting briefings to their staffs, of whom the Senate Committee has about 60;
- confining sensitive information to the chairmen and vice chairmen;
- no briefings for the purpose of media disclosures; and
- no sanitization of intelligence for Congressional publications without the explicit approval of me or my deputy.

Now, with your authorization to use the polygraph for eligibility to compartments and for counterintelligence investigations, I am planning to establish a special compartment for covert action information to be available only to members and perhaps one staff member for the minority and majority sides. To make this effective it is essential that your new directive permit use of the polygraph in investigating unauthorized disclosures as well as counterintelligence.

We should also work to require Congressional staffers to meet the same security standards and requirements as intelligence personnel, including polygraph screening on counterintelligence issues and keeping of records on press contacts.

To carry this off with the Congress, it is necessary to put our own house in order. More leaks emanate from the Executive side than from the Congress. [redacted]

Substantially the same rules must apply broadly. There is great disparity between the Executive departments and agencies. All employees of CIA [redacted] are polygraphed and are subject to repolygraph. Press contacts are strictly controlled in those agencies and are recorded and documented. Unauthorized media contacts and disclosures are covered by polygraph re-examinations. The prospect of being asked about unauthorized disclosures in a polygraph re-examination is the strongest deterrent to leaking we have found to date. In recent years, CIA's repolygraph program has surfaced unauthorized disclosures by about [redacted] people. Most of them were denied or separated from Agency employment or, in the case of industrial personnel, had their security approvals removed.

The polygraph is effective. More than [redacted] percent of CIA security disapproval decisions are based on polygraph-developed information. Its success is a function of admissions made by individuals during or after polygraph testing.

Most of the classified intelligence leaks published by the media are of information collected by CIA [redacted]. The strong personnel security programs and strict security discipline in these agencies make it unlikely that many of the leaks emanated from them. Over the last two years, [redacted] cases of the publication of unauthorized disclosures of classified intelligence were reported to my Security Committee by Intelligence Community agencies. Almost certainly there were other cases that were not reported. The Intelligence Community agencies conducted [redacted] investigations of those leaks, with more than one agency sometimes investigating the same leak. [redacted] cases were referred to the Department of Justice. Only one of these, the Morison case, was prosecuted. Usually no action is the result of there being so many recipients of the information that their job is like searching for a needle in a haystack.

I have already taken steps to reduce the dissemination of intelligence and your new directive will enable me to take further steps. We need to consider the further sifting of the haystack, and put leakers at risk by use of the polygraph or a grand jury, or both. We need also a high voltage specialized investigative team and Ed Meese is prepared to establish one.

The record of action on leaks is disturbing. Over the last two years, this illustrates a grave need for all elements of the government to be equally diligent in identifying and acting on leaks.

[redacted]

NOTE FROM OLIVER NORTH

Subject: Question from CBS

I have just had a chance to watch the W 37th piece. As far as I am concerned, it is the single most distorted piece of "reporting" I have ever seen. Hull does not allege that he knows me, does not confess to receiving money from me or anyone else at the NSC. The only charges made about the NSC are made by people who are in jail, on their way to jail or just out of jail. If this is supposed to be credible, then I'll eat my shirt. I have never met ANY of the accusers or had anything to do with any of them. Obviously, I know and have met several times with Eden Pastora. He does not allege any wrongdoing. I know Robert Owen - he was, up until the time it went out of business - a consultant to the State Dept. NHAO. He was not "paid off" $50k, as alleged by an anonymous accuser, he was paid a salary and expenses for services he provided in delivering humanitarian aid for the USG on a State Dept. contract. Finally, their main "witness," Mr. Terrell was not called to appear before Sen. Kerry's inquisition - apparently because people have learned that Mr. Terrell was not, as he claimed, a former Special Forces Officer, nor a CIA agent, nor a "combat leader." In short, neither the witnesses nor the slanderous piece that CBS produced have any credibility whatsoever.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Vice Admiral John M. Poindexter, USN
Assistant to the President for

SUBJECT: American Hostages

After discussing the release of Father Lawrence Jenco with Charlie Allen and Dewey Clarridge, I believe it is important that you have our assessment of this development and prospects for release of additional hostages.

First, it is indisputable that the Iranian connection actually worked this time, after a series of failures. You will recall that the [redacted] B Ghorbanifar connection also resulted in the release of Reverend Weir in September 1985.

After the impasse in Tehran over in late May, [redacted] continued to initiate direct contact with one of my officers, George Cave, even though the Iranians had been told that we were no longer interested in pursuing the matter. The fact that [redacted] persisted in contacting us indicates his desire to arrange a "deal" with Washington, either through Ghorbanifar or, if necessary, with Cave. He also clearly wanted to keep a channel open. Amir Mir, Special Assistant to the Prime Minister of Israel on Counter-Terrorism, has also played a critical role in a determined effort to force Iran to begin the release of American hostages. He has been supported by Prime Minister Peres and Defense Minister Rabin in this endeavor. In order to make the terms of the arrangements more palatable, Israel, on its own, offered additional arms "to sweeten the deal."

[redacted] to reinforce this commitment, he transferred $4 million to a West European bank to pay his European intermediary for the HAWK spare parts removed from our mission aircraft in May. On Wednesday, 23 July, when no hostage had been released, Ghorbanifar was instructed to inform [redacted] that "the deal was off."

In return for the release, [REDACTED] probably expects to receive most of the HAWK spare parts not yet delivered, along with additional military equipment that Israel unilaterally has added to the arrangement. Once this equipment is delivered, [REDACTED] stated that Iran would take action to obtain the release of one more hostage and would pay the remainder of the money owed to the Iranian intermediary for the HAWK spare parts.

[REDACTED] moreover, indicated a willingness to meet with U.S. officials again on these matters, either in Tehran or "somewhere else" -- presumably Western Europe.

This is how we see the current situation:

-- The Ghorbanifar [REDACTED] connection has worked for the second time -- and another American has been released.

-- Ghorbanifar is an uncontrollable factor, but appears to respond generally to Mir's direction.

-- Mir has every reason to work for further releases of our hostages. Peres and Rabin have put their reputation on the Ghorbanifar connection and support Mir fully in his endeavors. There would be a considerable loss of face for Mir and his superiors if the link were broken. This connection appears to be the only hope they have for recovering their own missing soldiers.

-- [REDACTED] has now acted and likely expects the United States to respond quickly in turn by delivering most of the remaining HAWK spare parts. He probably believes the United States is also supplying the additional military equipment that has been promised.

-- Whether we are prepared to negotiate or meet their demands or expectations at this point, we should find out what they are.

-- If the deliveries do not occur, [REDACTED] will lose badly with his superiors in Tehran and matters could turn ugly, especially since the Lebanese Hizballah captors probably are not pleased with the Jenco release.

-- If there is no USG contact as a result of Jenco's release, it is entirely possible that Iran and/or Hizballah could resort to the murder of one or more of the remaining hostages.

ON INTELLIGENCE
WASHINGTON, DC 20515

August 12, 1986

CHI 7
#52

Honorable Ronald D. Coleman
416 Cannon House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Ron:

As you are aware, there have been numerous stories published in the press during the last year alleging that members of the National Security Council violated the Boland amendment prohibiting certain assistance to the contras fighting the government of Nicaragua. As a result of these allegations, you introduced a resolution of inquiry to compel the National Security Council to provide certain information so the Congress could make a determination as to whether or not the Boland amendment was violated during the time it was in effect.

Because of the highly classified nature of the work of the National Security Council, the resolution of inquiry was referred to the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. Members of the Committee, including myself, went to the White House to examine the issues raised by the resolution with Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North, a member of the National Security Council staff and one of the principal subjects of the resolution; the President's National Security Adviser; and other members of the NSC staff, including White House counsel. In addition, the Committee also examined other classified evidence concerning the resolution.

Based on our discussions and review of the evidence provided, it is my belief that the published press allegations cannot be proven.

The resolution of inquiry was the proper vehicle by which to bring these matters to the attention of the Congress and to this Committee, and we appreciate your efforts to remove doubts about United States activities.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

Lee H. Hamilton
Chairman

Ronin Velayati is one of the few non-clerics at the top of the GOI. He is a technocrat, reportedly a conservative and relatively close to Rafsanjani. He reportedly is a member of the "War Council" which determines the disposition of resources and funds vital to the Iranian government. According to Velayati participated in the hearings regarding our earlier diplomatic approach to the GOI. [redacted] had evaluated these initiatives as sincere. [redacted] reports, however, that Velayati was not in the final sessions they had which authorized [redacted] trip to the U.S. In these sessions Rafsanjani, Hoshea Rafiq-Dust and Mohseend Hosein Jalalai along with Musavi-Khamehni made the decision for his to come to the U.S. and to be assured that he was indeed talking to the top of the U.S.G. He the Casey/Shultz discussions: Casey informs that he told Shultz, alone, that the CIA was assisting in bringing [redacted] into and out of the U.S. for talks and that he (Casey) ed get back to Shultz at some point in the future on what had transpired. According to Bill, Shultz simply said "OK." Hope this is

Talks with ██████ commenced on Friday night and proceeded almost non-stop until Sunday at 1100 when he departed for Istanbul aboard charter. George and Dick agree that things went extremely well. He is assured that the GOY is dealing directly with the USG and that the mutual interests of both parties transcend the "obstacle" of the hostages - out that this problem must be solved first. Much credit in this goes to Dick, who established the initial contact in Brussels. ██████ wants to set up a "joint committee" in Turkey or Portugal for resolving the issues which separate us - an idea which would then lead to putting a discrete communications team in Tehran. At one point he asked if Secord could return with him to advise on how to set this up. He asked specifically for a sign from the USG that we are indeed moving in the right direction and we agreed to a carefully constructed phrase in a VOA broadcast which would mention the nations which denied access to the hijacked PA 73 A/C - and include Iran in the list. He will be back to us later in the week after he has met with the leadership in Tehran. In discussing what we could do for them he raised the issues of 2M homeless in Iran, the collapse of the economy and the destruction of their oil industry. He complained bitterly about the French effort this spring which he said was designed only to get their hostages out and to help Chirac get elected. We noted that he could not be reflected, that his motivation was to bring about an honorable end to the killing in the Iran/Iraq war, and to reestablish a positive relationship with the Iranian government that would lead to Christians, Jews and Moslems living in peace with one another. On a number of occasions he was told that he believed deeply in the teachings of our Holy Book, a copy of which was on the table, and reference was made to a number of pertinent passages (e.g. Gen. 15:7-21; Gal. 3:7; etc.). At one point he noted to George that he being a man of God had removed the only argument they had - that Allah was supposed to be on their side. He has promised prompt action on the hostages, is looking for assurances that we will not walk away once they use their influence for their free and noted that the USG should stop other attempts to make contact w/ the COI to prevent confusion within the factions at home. He expressed several concerns about the Ashghari channel and admitted that they believed someone close to [redacted] was working for the KGB. He expressed great concern that the Soviets could exploit confirmation of the contact by making the contact public and doing great mischief in Iran and the U.S. and by rapidly escalating their assistance to Iraq or even intervening in Iran. We did all we could to feed this anxiety. Mir has been calling regularly to exhort us to move on the next shipment. Because [redacted] has asked us to wait to see what the result of his discussion in Tehran is, we have decided to stall by telling Mir and Gorba that we must have a meeting w/ [redacted] before we can proceed. We have told Mir that you and RR are very concerned about the two new hostages and that we cannot proceed w/ further deliveries until such a meeting takes place. [redacted] has asked that for the time being we leave the Israelis out of this because of the problems at home. Contrary to what Mir said here, [redacted] did know that Mir was an Israeli. We will put together a summary of the talks by my return Wednesday. You can brief [redacted] that we seem to be headed in a very positive direction on this matter and have hopes that the hostage resolution will lead to a significant role in ending the Iran/Iraq war. The only change I have on this so far is that it was in support of FDN forces in the SOUTH not in the north of Nicaragua. I'll correct that w/ JMP when/if he responds, or if we get something else significant to pass on to him.

Yesterday one of the Democracy Inc aircraft apparently went down on a resupply mission to FDN forces in the north. It is overdue from its mission, and no radio contact was received. It is currently unknown where or why the aircraft went down, but [redacted] assets are discreetly organizing a SAR effort over international waters & friendly territory portions of the route. Three Americans and one Nicaraguan national aboard. I will keep you advised of details as I get them.
